MBD 9: CERTIFICATE OF INDEPENDENT BID DETERMINATION

- 1 This Municipal Bidding Document (MBD) must form part of all bids¹ invited.
- 2 Section 4 (1) (b) (iii) of the Competition Act No. 89 of 1998, as amended, prohibits an agreement between, or concerted practice by, firms, or a decision by an association of firms, if it is between parties in a horizontal relationship and if it involves collusive bidding (or bid rigging).² Collusive bidding is a pe se prohibition meaning that it cannot be justified under any grounds.
- 3 Municipal Supply Regulation 38 (1) prescribes that a supply chain management policy must provide measures for the combating of abuse of the supply chain management system, and must enable the accounting officer, among others, to:
 - a. take all reasonable steps to prevent such abuse;
 - b. reject the bid of any bidder if that bidder or any of its directors has abused the supply chain management system of the municipality or municipal entity or has committed any improper conduct in relation to such system; and
 - c. cancel a contract awarded to a person if the person committed any corrupt or fraudulent act during the bidding process or the execution of the contract.
4. This MBD serves as a certificate of declaration that would be used by institutions to ensure that, when bids are considered, reasonable steps are taken to prevent any form of bid-rigging.
5. In order to give effect to the above, the attached Certificate of Bid Determination (MBD 9) must be completed and submitted with the bid:

² Bid rigging (or collusive bidding) occurs when businesses, that would otherwise be expected to compete, secretly conspire to raise prices or lower the quality of goods and / or services for purchasers who wish to acquire goods and / or services through a bidding process. Bid rigging is, therefore, an agreement between competitors not to compete.

7. Standard

12.1 Introduction

It is a mandatory requirement for employees to identify all hazards in the workplace, to notify employees accordingly and to provide adequate protection against such hazards.

It is thus vitally important to protect workers against the thermal hazards of an electric arc whilst working within the arc flash boundary on energized LV and MV electrical installations. An electric arc flash originates from a breakdown of insulation medium with resultant extreme high energy release in the form of conductive plasma. Heat propagation from the plasma is predominantly infrared radiation with temperatures exceeding 20 000°C.

Breakdown of insulation and subsequent flash can occur at any time during operation on energized electrical systems but are most probable to occur during switching, testing, linking and earthing. The equipment age, state of maintenance and environmental conditions also play a major role in the likelihood and severity of a flash. When switchgear contacts fail to clear fault conditions, the full fault current will continue to flow for an extended period and with exaggerated consequential damage.

The severity of the Arc is measured by the incident heat energy and expressed in cal/cm^2 . The incident heat level is influenced by a combination of the system voltage, fault level, arc flash gap, the duration to clear the fault and the distance from the flash.

The Arc rating of protective clothing and equipment is referred to as the ATPV (arc thermal protective value) rating and also expressed in cal/cm^2 . It is important to note that protective wear rated at say ATPV55 will provide adequate thermal protection against a 55 cal/cm² flash to prevent second degree burns.

Proper selection and use of Arc protective clothing and equipment are essential in providing the required protection.

12.2 Risk Evaluation

In order to provide the correct level of protection it is essential to quantify the thermal hazard or incident heat level. The incident heat level will vary from one installation to another and also from point to point within the same installation. It is therefore highly advisable to conduct a network study for each electrical installation to confirm the incident heat levels at each distribution point.

In the absence of operational specific network evaluation, table 1 and 2 below can be used as a guide to determine the typical incident heat level across the installations.
